Full Text of JOE Listing:

Applications are invited for 2 tenure-track positions as Assistant Professor at the Einaudi Institute for Economics and Finance (EIEF), starting in the summer of 2012. EIEF is a research foundation, created by the Bank of Italy in 2008, that produces academic research of the highest quality standards, with emphasis on policy-relevant topics. EIEF also offers courses at graduate level and runs high quality conferences. It provides a pleasant and stimulating research environment, a top-notch visiting program, the opportunity to interact with policy makers, excellent facilities and premises located in the centre of Rome. More information can be found at: www.eief.it.

The positions offer a competitive compensation package plus a research budget. Successful candidates are expected to publish their research in top peer-reviewed journals, teach graduate students (up to 30 hours per year in the first 3 years, up to 60 later on), contribute to the intellectual environment of EIEF and help run the seminars, other scientific events and the visiting
